Building business and management skills

For anyone working in the healthcare sector, delivering the best possible care is key. At the same time, quality healthcare is much broader than patient care alone. Today's most successful healthcare professionals are also knowledgeable in essential business and management principles.

Whether you are running your own practice or managing others in a hospital, clinic, pharmacy or healthcare delivery organization, you must be able to effectively lead the people around you, understand the financial landscape, create budgets and navigate the regulatory environment.

This certificate program aims to provide professionals in the healthcare industry with the basic knowledge and skills needed to manage people, processes and programs efficiently.

This healthcare management program is tailored to support the professional development of:

- Medical doctors from all specialties
